Installed Software

This is a list of software packages installed on this PC that have an entry in the Add/Remove Programs dialog of Control Panel. Not all software packages installed on the system may have an entry listed here, but most will.

If you do not believe that you installed a particular software package listed here, there could be several explanations for how it got there:

- 1 If you bought a name-brand PC, it may have been installed by the maker of the PC before you bought it.
- 2 It may have been bundled with software that you knowingly did install, but the bundling was not made clear during the installation process.
- 3 It may have been installed through a drive-by download; many spyware and adware packages are installed this way.

One way to determine whether a software package was bundled with something is to see if there are other pieces of software that you did install on the same date; the chances are good that those may have bundled the software you don't recognize. Note: On Windows 9x/Me systems, it is not always possible to determine the installation date.
